

CONTRIBUTE TO THE ECONOMIC VIABILITY OF YOUR COMMUNITY

Earn an associate degree and then transfer to Missouri State University (MSU) to earn a bachelor's degree. This is made possible through the Agriculture Pathways Partnership between MSU and Crowder College. All required classes, for both degrees, are available on the Crowder College campus in Neosho or online.

As a holder of an associate of arts degree, you may be able to complete your bachelor's degree in as little as two years. You will receive a strong foundation of agriculture knowledge taking classes in fields such as agronomy, animal science, horticulture and business.

Upon the completion of this degree, you may be prepared for a diverse choice of careers in:

- Conservation
- Extension education
- Farm and ranch management
- Management in state and federal agencies
- Sales and management of agriculture products
